

I would like to reply to the comments filed by the Educational Media FOundation about translators and LPFM. Since the takeover of high powered corporation of the nations airwaves I have not only had a void of programing that I enjoy, but that I feel is morale or unskewed or includes the local community. Support of the community and news concening the community is becoming rare with the commercial stations.

Although groups such as EMF are presenting moral and quality options through the use of "translators" their views and programing are not always ones that I share or have interest in. I feel that in a demorcratic society, options to express views, ideas, and artistic expression should not be limited to few. The option of LPFM is important and one that I hope will be available to me soon. I am a moral and upstanding citizen who is concerned about the community that I live and take offense to the fact that EMF feels I am undeserved. Furthermore there are millions of "deprived citizens" that have never been given the chance to benefit from LPFM the way listners of EMF have. Thank you for your time.
